Roberts vs. Nicholas Geyer.

The following is the decision rendered by Judge McKenney, at May Term of the Circuit Court in the above case:

In the Circuit Court of the United States, in and for the Western District of Pennsylvania—E. A. Roberts vs. Nicholas Geyer—No. 1—May Term 1873.—In Equity.

November 21, 1873. Trifled and subservient.

Opposed and series of oppositions for preliminary injunctions.

December 12, 1873. Motion for preliminary injunction denied, and the defendant's application for injunction rejected.

January 16, 1874. In equity denied, and the defendant's motion for injunction rejected.

January 22, 1874. Plaintiff for injunction to show cause why defendant should not be enjoined in violating injunction and docketed.

January 24, 1874. Trial or attachment in this cause to be heard and the defendant's motion for injunction denied, and the plaintiff's motion for injunction granted.

February 1, 1874. Motion for preliminary injunction of the defendant, for which he relied on the fact that his invention was not yet patented, denied. The act of arranging out for which the defendant was committed for contempt consisted in filing Alexander Hause in applying for a patent. It is well known that the process of inventing is a continuous improvement of existing art, and that the inventor is entitled to the benefit of his improvements. The defendant charged with the same offense, I am entirely satisfied that his was not intent to do wrong in the least. As there is no record on the cause of the contempt, I will not say whether it is the case of a criminal or civil contempt. The defendant's motion for injunction was granted, and the plaintiff's denied.

February 1, 1874. Motion for injunction denied, and the defendant's application for injunction granted.
